Well, fall is, er, well, falling and we're sharpening our pencils because at least one of us is going back to school. Start things off right with the October installment of the HoC.

In our A.I.R. space is our old school chum Sarah Nicole Phillips. Sarah (www.sarahnicolephillips.com) is a Toronto-born, Brooklyn-based visual artist who has exhibited widely in Canada and the US. In 2006, she received an MFA from Brooklyn College with a concentration in printmaking. Currently concluding a one-year artist residency at the Lower East Side Printshop, Sarah is active in New York's bicycle activism and printmaking communities.

Fancy a flight or a flight of fancy? Check out Wim Janssen's 'Vliegsimulator' on the Listening Lounge telly. Wim (wimmjanssen@hotmail.com) studied experimental film at Sint Lukas Hogeschool Brussels. He works in film, video and installation art. His work focuses mainly on strategies and technologies of seeing.

Marty's a hurtin' and so are we. If you want to feel our pain, look out for our Top 12 songs about bruises in the Listening Lounge. Featuring beats (pun intended!) from Jimmy Eat World, Ghostface and Grizzly Bear.

Need to pack a lunch? Why not try your hand at homemade pitas? Head to the kitchen for the how-to.
